FOR THE DISTRICT OF NORTH DAKOTA

United States of America,)

)
vs.)
)
Eugene White Owl, Sr.,)	Case No. 1:20-cr-058
Defendant.)

Before the Court is Defendant’s second motion to reconsider order of detention. (Doc. No. 32). Advising that he suffers hip pain and has concerns about COVID-19, he requests release to the residence of his nephew in Bismarck, North Dakota. The United States has filed a response in opposition, arguing that defendant continues to present a threat to the community and pointing out that the measures adopted by correctional facilities have been effective in preventing the spread of disease. (Doc. No. 33). The United States also states that it has inquired with the United States Marshal’s Service and learned that defendant has not complained of any medical conditions nor sought medical assistance while detained.

The Court previously denied a similar request made by Defendant. (Doc. No. 31). Much of the same reasoning applies here. For instance, defendant’s very generalized concerns regarding COVID-19 and his health do not constitute compelling reasons justifying his conditional release. Nor is there anything in Defendant’s motion indicating he cannot seek or receive treatment for his hip condition while incarcerated. Further, nothing in Defendant’s motion addresses the Court’s concern about danger to members of the community. The possibility of an available residence in Bismarck, standing alone, does not outweigh the other factors justifying detention.

In sum, the court again finds that the circumstances do not warrant reconsideration of defendant's custodial status. Defendant's motion (Doc. No. 32) is DENIED.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated this 13th day of August, 2020.
